With so many clock apps available these days, it has become difficult to choose one that will provide users with all the necessary features and functionalities. MultiAlarm is a positive solution for those who need a minimalist yet capable desktop alarm, and at the same time to keep track of time at all times. It is a light and elegant desktop app which comes with multiple customizable alarms, an efficient tray area icon access, and direct desktop notifications of the active alarms. The applications come packed with all the necessary settings that will make it easy to manage multiple alarms and keep tabs on the time. Each of the alarms comes with its own attributes, customizable settings and three playback-type controls. Users can add them, customize, adjust their behavior and characteristics, and turn them on or off. MultiAlarm Key Features: Customizable alarms There are many options in terms of customization of the alarms. Each of the alarms features three on-screen playback controls. These are used to quickly access each of the different settings for the alarm, remove them, initiate the counter, access their settings or remove the alarm altogether. Alarm trays

There are two alarm trays featured in MultiAlarm. The first is in the bottom panel of the program, and the other is a tray on the desktop. In both cases, users will see all the alarms listed and can access them easily. Alarm access from the tray area The tray area icon enables users to access all the active alarms, and after they have been sorted into groups, they can be accessed quickly. The tray area also comes packed with quick-access settings for the alarms, which come in handy for not having to open up the application all the time to adjust an alarm. Direct desktop notifications Even though there are various desktop clock apps available, MultiAlarm stands out as it provides direct desktop notifications for the active alarms. This will make it possible for one to see the current time on the desktop as well as see the time when a specific alarm will be triggered. As there are various options that are offered, it is possible to add the notification message, and add multiple colors to the different alarms. This way, the different alarms can easily be identified. MultiAlarm Alternatives For any other apps to come across that offer similar features and capabilities, there are some alternatives in the paid section of the Google Play Store, listed below: Task Reminder An alarm applications that was created for providing users with a means to enable reminders and access to

I love to write software reviews and it seems to be a big passion of mine. The main reason why I write software reviews is for myself, I enjoy writing software reviews and it helps me learn more about the software I use. All reviews are read by me for two things, the first being relevancy and usefulness of the software, and the second is the usability of the product. I do not write software reviews to earn money, we do it for the
