This page provides information about the Cultivation Carts, Plows, and Steam Engines in the Crop Farming system. Update: Now you can buy the steam engine from the inventory screen when using the Crop Farming GUI with the game update 1.12.0! Crop Farming Players interested in playing Minecraft from the early history of the game can buy crops for their new farm from the Crop Farm. To farm crops, you must have a Crop Farm in your home. Players will need to collect the resources to produce it. It has the following uses. Crop Seeds Crop Farms allow players to produce seeds which are used to grow the Crop. To grow a Crop, a Crop Farm is needed. Requirements One Crop Farm is required. Cooking requirements: Cooking books or cookbooks Special requirements: Crop Seeds Crafting requirements: Grinding table Using a Crop Farm A Crop Farm has three parts. The crafting table and storage area The plant gathering table The Crop Farm gui Players can mine ore blocks and craft a crafting table. To craft a crafting table, mine two blocks of iron and coal at a forge. Saving a crafting table allows you to craft a staircase to the top floor. You can then craft tools in the storage area. Building an iron farmhouse is optional. Iron farmhouses do not increase the quality of the Crop farm and should be used if the player plans on building on an iron farm. The storage area contains a storage chest and a chest which provides more iron and coal when broken. In the plant gathering table, players can plant seeds which will produce the Crop. The Crop is the same name as the plant. Crop Seeds are the item which allows the Crop to be grown. To grow a Crop, you need Crop Seeds. Special requirements: Upgrading the Crop farm allows you to plant new Crop seeds. To grow a Crop, the plant gathering table is needed. The plant gathering table is a filled green square which will show the state of the Crop 82157476af
